MISSOULA--

The Native American Cultural Institute at the University of Montana in Missoula is holding a summer institute for school personnel in service areas through Friday, Aug. 9.

The three-week institute will include two weeks of instruction on the UM campus and one week of field work, including tours of four Montana Indian reservations. Several prominent Indian and non-Indian guest lecturers will participate in the institute.

The courses offered are: "The Reservation Indian," three credits, and "American Indian Education," four credits.

Approximately 50 school personnel from 15 participating school districts are enrolled in the institute. The project director and instructor, Rosella Redwolf Covington, a Crow from Wyola, said there also will be a follow-up to the project during the 1974-75 academic year.

Covington said the public is invited to attend the institute sessions from 9 a.m.-10:30 a.m. and 1-2:30 p.m. weekdays in room 215 of the UM Women's Center.

Four reservations--Flathead, Blackfeet, Rocky Boy's and Fort Belknap--and three urban areas--Great Falls, Billings and Butte--are target areas for the institute.

UM students acting as group leaders include: Ruth Couture, Salish, Flathead Reservation; Sam Windy Boy Jr., Chippewa-Cree, Rocky Boy's Reservation; Robert Tailfeathers, Blackfeet, Blackfeet Reservation; and Clarice Charlo Sanchez, Salish, Flathead Reservation.

Field coordinator of the summer institute is Jerry Lankford, a Gros Ventre from the Fort Belknap Reservation.
